Port Washington Chamber of Commerce will be Freezin' for a Reason once again at the 2018 Town of North Hempstead Polar Plunge on Saturday, March 3, at North Hempstead Beach Park, to raise money for the New York Special Olympics.

Adding to the Editorial Menu

Dave Allen

In this column last month, titled "I Wish I Had Known," we embarked on a new phase in the development of the Port Washington Calendar. That is, we would provide timely listings of specific products and services available locally. In addition, we would begin a monthly listing of Port Washington restaurants by the type of food served.

This issue is our first attempt at these ambitious projects and they are published here with more than a little difficulty. For the Summer Camp directory we mailed something like 400 letters and a similar number of emails to religious organizations, learning centers, children's centers, music, sports and recreation organizations. Of course we missed the fact that a significant percentage of those involved with children take the Presidents' week vacation to escape from Port.

This reminded me of a sales job I had in Chicago more years ago than I want to discuss. It was a salaried job selling product to grocery stores and the emerging supermarket business. The cynics in the company had a mantra, "You never get into trouble until you do something." So here we are.

The result of this first effort is a nice listing of about a dozen camps spanning a terrific spectrum of interests and opportunities. Knowing that this is not as comprehensive as we would like, we are asking any interested camp group to contact us and we will publish a supplementary list in our April issue.

Such is life.

Undaunted, our schedule for the year can be found below.
